Dear Diary,

Grease paint! Footlights! Action! After three performances in "Footlight Follies" I'm beginning to feel as if I were a veteran actor. No one can realize how rewarded we were when the show was a hit; and to top it all off, we have secured money for the coming music festival.

Miss Severson informed us that starting tomorrow the small vocal groups will really get into action. The girls' sextette and madrigal are my assignments. She told us that if we worked hard enough and produced good results, we might get to go to contest—and I know we all want to go.

In Chorus A today we practiced our concert pieces, "O What a Lovely Magic Hath Been Here," "Salvation Is Created" and "Coming Through the Rye." Mother and Dad, as well as the other parents, will be able to come to our program in the spring.

"Say it with music" is an epigram taken to heart at Senior. For many of us vocal music is our forte.

Dear Diary,

Now that the last buses have left for Clinton and Freeport, the town seems very quiet. It will be a long time before I forget the thrill of being host to the annual music festival or the friends I made and the fun we had playing under the direction of such fine leaders.

Daniel L. Martin, band director at the University of Indiana, left his band for a few days; and Thor Johnson deserted his Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra just to be with us. After meeting them, I can see that charming personality as well as musical talent led to their success.

The festival was a grand finale to all the accomplishments of the band this year—drills at football games, concerts, and preparing students for the state music contest. Each band member worked hard to make the band one of Senior's outstanding organizations, but much credit should go to the untiring help and encouragement of our director—Floyd G. Rundle.

ORCHESTRA

Dear Dairy,

Not more than an hour ago the curtain came down on a very successful Christmas concert. The orchestra's part of the program consisted of playing several classical selections, a novelty number and the musical background for the reading "Small One." As the closing number the orchestra and chorus combined their talents to present Handel's stirring "Hallelujah Chorus."

With this accomplishment behind us, we will start practicing festival music. Our audition number, "Rosamunde," is a challenge to everyone of us.

Next Saturday night the dance band is going to play for a school dance. I'll certainly be glad to hear them again, because they were very good at their last appearance. Under George Flanders' leadership they show promise of becoming one of the most outstanding dance bands that our school has produced.

SPEECH

Dear Diary,

In my speech arts class this year we are working on declamations, radio speeches, interpretive readings, original orations and extemporaneous speaking. After the students have spent the required time in preparation, they compete against each other to determine who will continue on to the future contests. I am preparing "A Couple of Geniuses" as my declamation.

Under the direction of our instructor, Miss Sybil Lamb, the speech department sponsored "Speech Spotlights of 1950," the purpose of which was to acquire funds to send eligible students to contest.

The debate team's topic this year is "Resolved: That the president of the United States should be elected by the direct vote of the people."

LANGUAGES

Lerne was, so kannst du was.
Buenos días.
And then there's Emerson.

Dear Diary,

That certain teacher called on me again today, and once more I was stumped for words. I just can't seem to express myself or put the words in their right order. I've decided henceforth to give my English lessons their proper attention: also my teacher explained some of the English classes to me and offered her help. What a break! It seems that all the English classes have oral work, grammar reviews, and written compositions. With each advanced year, more literature is read and studied. There is Journalism that teaches one how to gather material, how to arrange it and how to write it in a brief but well-informed way. A class called Business English is offered for the people going into positions requiring business correspondence.

Non scholae sed vitae discimus.

Mais oui!

After I finish my English studies, I bet I can talk and write effectively and get ahead in the world.

Tonight a group of friends and I studied for our big tests in languages. I've been seeing so much German that it's hard to write in English. "Lerne was, so hannst du was."

Geneva and Betty kept us entertained with their Spanish. Already they're able to carry on an intelligent but simple conversation. In French, as in Spanish, the pupils gain speaking and reading ability. Andy was telling us tonight about the colorful and exciting background of the French people.

Jane, who takes fourth year Latin, is kept quite busy translating Ovid and Cicero. However, she took time out to tell us that in her study of Latin the emphasis is put on English words derived from Latin and the relation of Latin to English.

In all, we studied hard—which only brings to mind another German proverb—"Gut Ding will weile haben." With this thought in mind I will say "Gute Nacht" and tuck you away until tomorrow.

MATHEMATICS

Dear Diary,

Today the Christmas tree was gaily bedecked with multi-colored regular polyhedrons—ornaments made by the geometry class. For a couple days we, deviating from the regular class-work, have been working on these decorations, which are equilateral and equiangular—the two qualifications for a regular polygon. The ornament Nancy hung on the tree was an octahedron made by putting eight equilateral triangles together. Taking six squares, I found a solid hexahedron or a cube, which I covered with decorative wrapping paper and red and green ribbon to make it resemble a gift that Santa might have left on the tree. Joe had a novel idea: he gave his icosahedron a starry effect by placing a tetrahedron on each of the twenty faces. Before leaving the class we stood back and admired our work of art—an unusually bright and festive Christmas tree. The following day we had to return to our study of interior and exterior angles of regular polygons. We went to the board and drew some regular polygons and their diagonals. We proved that the sum of their interior angles is equal to two less than the number of sides is multiplied by 180° .

SOCIAL SCIENCE

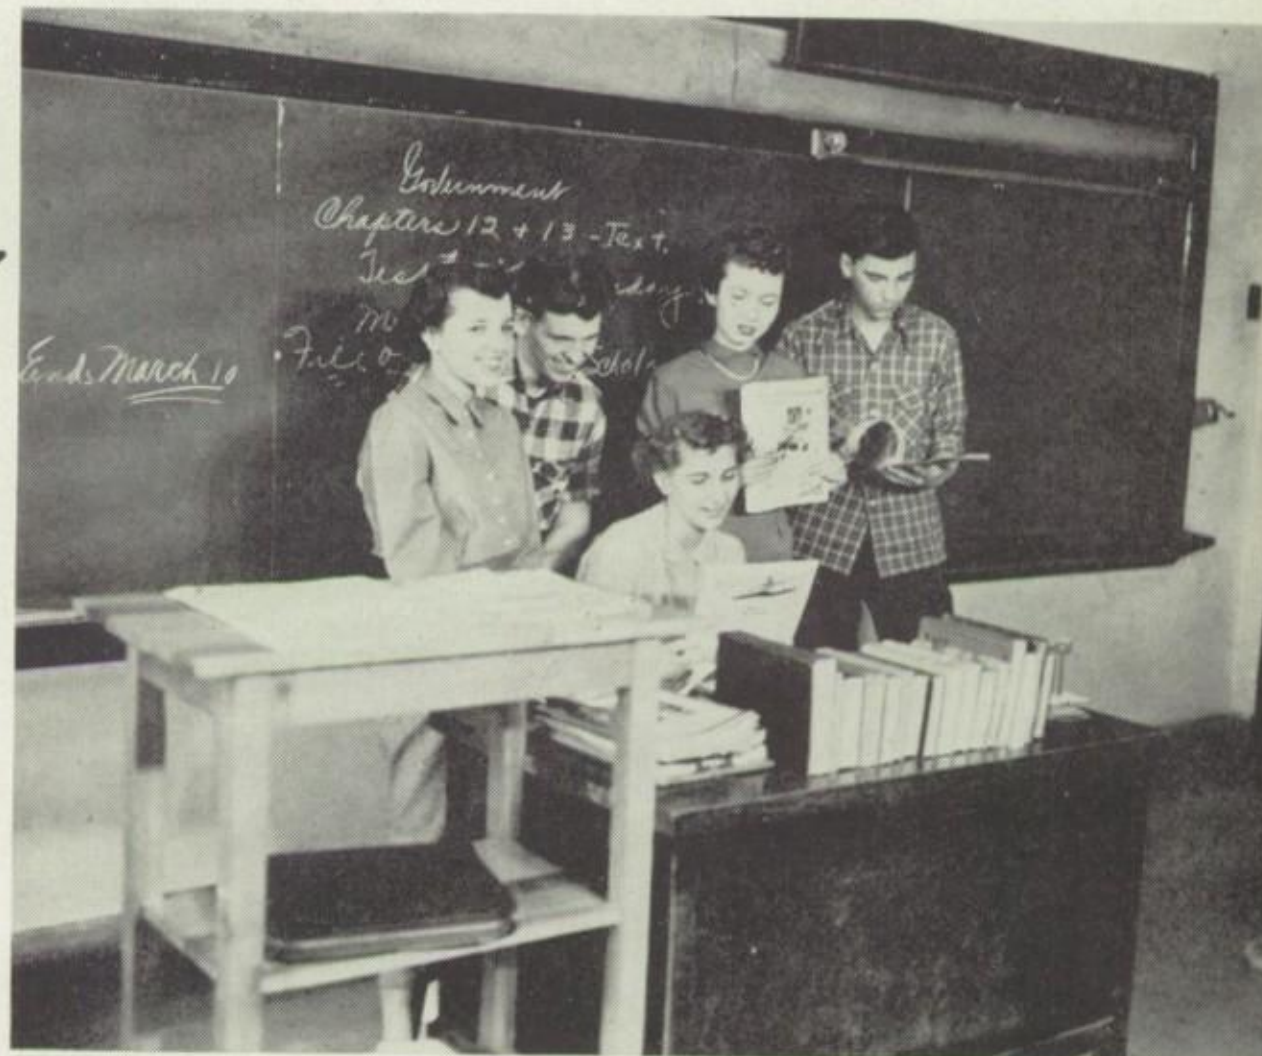

Dear Diary,

The discussion in American problems was the highlight of the day. This racial question seems particularly serious to me. Although all I have learned in the course about democracy, marriage, personalities and character, and security throughout life has been vital, no part seems more so than the race problem in our country. I realized today that even I am prejudiced.

I am glad I took my American history seriously last year; I understand problems better because American History gave me a picture of our country from the Revolutionary War to the present. Many of the events and personalities we read about were thrilling as well as significant.

If I were to take my studies over again, I think I would include some more history—such as world history, or perhaps Latin American history, which gives a better understanding of our American neighbors by tracing their economic and social development. I will take American government before graduating; I can learn the useful and necessary things about the functioning of our government of today. Soon, as a voter, I shall need that knowledge.

Our interesting Scholastics.

SCIENCE

Dot-Dash-Dot.

And all of a sudden—Boom!

Dear Diary,

We did a laboratory experiment on sulfur today in chemistry. In filling out my write-up I stated how rhombic and monoclinic sulfur crystals were formed. I also made drawings of them, showing their appearance under a lens. Written like that, my notebook will be excellent for future reference.

I found out that mixing chemicals isn't all there is to chemistry; we learn the composition and reaction of substances as well. First semester chemistry lays the foundation for all laboratory work, while second semester deals with organic chemistry.

My brother told me that his physics class made a human chain today. The whole class held hands and the two persons on the end grasped wires from a battery. He said his hands tingled a little when the electricity passed through. Simple experiments like this make electricity easier for him to understand.

Next week when the class start mechanics, each person will measure his horsepower. He told me the units on light, heat, and sound also presented unusual things to learn by doing. He finds physics very interesting since it deals with things he sees and uses every day. He admitted that the girls in his class, there are a few, do just as well as the boys.

His interest in radios led him to take radio; and yesterday he took apart a tube, which is one of the most important parts of the radio, and mounted it. He said it is easier to study the function of each part this way. Other parts of the radio, such as coils and condensers, are studied in a similar manner.

Did you ever dissect a frog? I did today in biology. After finally locating all the organs and sketching them in my note book, I studied their individual functions.

The work we have covered already, all of it fascinating, included development of life, insects, mammals, microorganisms, vertebrate body plan and success of the chordates. These units showed us how the plant and animal kingdom are similar but also different. I can hardly wait until we reach the unit on heredity; then I will find out exactly how traits are passed on from one generation to another.

I think biology furnishes a valuable background for all students and is a "must" for those who plan to go into such professions as nursing or medicine.

Next semester, after my year of biology, I am going to take physiology. Since everyone in my class will have taken biology our backgrounds will be the same.

I will be studying myself, so to speak, because physiology deals entirely with the activities and functions of the human body. In the first unit I will study the general organization of the body, but in the following ones special problems on coordination, preparation and uses of energy, respiration, circulatory system and endocrine system will be taken. I'm glad that films will be used a lot; they help to explain the text by giving a picture of the actual organ in operation.

Then it goes through here.

Physicists at work.

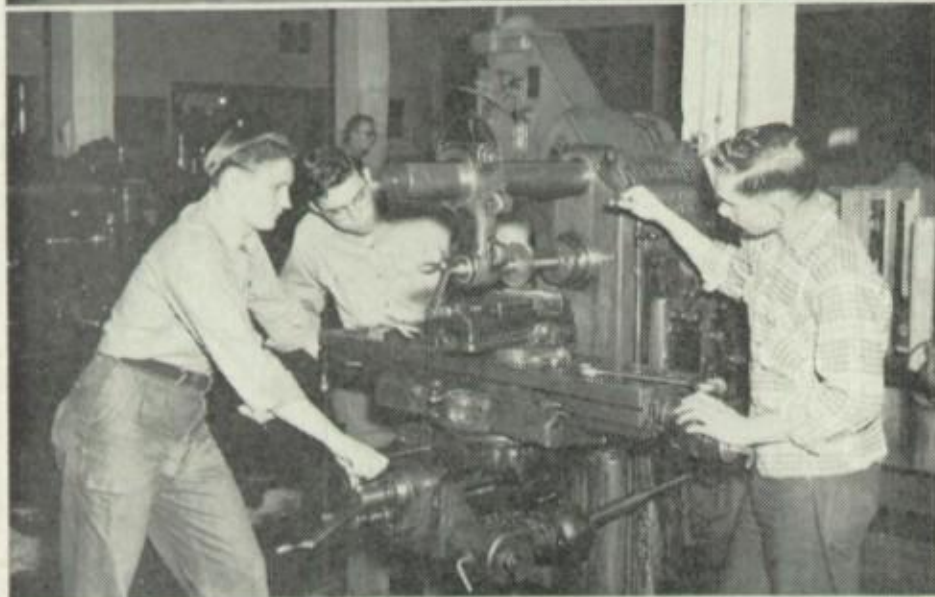

MANUAL ARTS

Dear Diary,

Our usual group walked home from school tonight, most of us shop boys, and naturally the conversation turned to our projects, on which we worked today. I have just finished making a tool box for the machine shop; and Mike, who is ahead of me, has started on an ash tray. Our foreman assigned Bill the task of painting all the tool boxes. Another boy put our class in stitches when he tried his hand at welding, and flames shot out all over. Possibly the joker had the jet wide open.

In machine shop my friends, Jack and Bob, are making surface gauges which are used in measuring. This is a project that will take them about ten weeks. Many of the other students are working on tap wrenches and screw drivers, and a few are just completing centers for lathes. These tools, of course, are just a few of the jobs done in this class. Jack plans to be a mechanic in the future, while Bob is looking forward to a machinist's job and possibly working himself up to a foreman's position.

I am working on a coffee table made of Philippine mahogany wood in my other shop course—woodworking and plan to make a magazine rack next. Tom has just completed his book case by sandpapering and staining it. Joe and Ray are both working on foot stools and it seems like a contest to see who can do the better job. The cushion part of these stools is made by weaving pressed paper. Still other projects being made are whatnot shelves, end tables and sixty-two hurdles for Senior's track team.

Today I received the assignment to make 10000 schedule cards for Senior. First of all, I found out the measurements, the type size and the proper spacing. This project contains job rule lines. Because this job is repeated about twice a year, the lockup is not distributed. Dick, one of my friends, is now making report cards for Senior and the elementary schools. Other fellows in print shop are making permit slips, ticket campaign tags and many other useful articles for the school.

A drawing of a piston for an aircraft engine is my next assignment in mechanical drawing, after I have finished a level gearing problem, which will complete the required fourth project needed for the six weeks. Our instructor has put two other boys to work making architectural drawings for the remodeling of a home. This course will be helpful to those who want to follow vocation such as interior decorators, architects, engineers, machinists and draftsmen.

Dear Diary,

The highlight of today was the entertaining of our mothers in the foods class. All enjoyed the dinner, which proved to my mother that I am able to plan, prepare, and serve a nutritional, appetizing and attractive meal.

I heard today that the clothing class is going to have a Fashion Tea at the end of the semester. Each girl is modeling the garment she has made. I would learn to choose clothes suitable to me in design, color and fabric if I took this course. I wonder . . .

In principles of nursing we finished the unit on improvising equipment for the sick room. Imagine using an umbrella in the construction of an inhalation tent! Tomorrow we are starting the study of pre-natal care.

In the home management class I will learn how to furnish a small apartment, arrange furniture, and many other useful things. I can hardly wait!

Dear Diary,

Which shall I specialize in—arts, crafts or ceramics? One of them, I can't decide which, will be my field in art school after graduation.

Today in crafts I finished a leather purse which has been in the making for about two weeks. Now the problem is what to concoct next. Many in our class are working on textiles, making scarfs and tablecloths; some have plastic projects. Both appeal to me greatly.

In ceramics I finished firing my clay bowl in the kiln the first time. Tomorrow we'll glaze and re-fire our models. In a few days our class will boast a display of professional looking nick-nacks, bowls, trays and cups.

In fine arts class today I painted a "sharp" picture in modern art style, splashing colors on in rhythm with a recording of fast music. Tomorrow we're drawing portraits, which I can hardly wait to try.

Much to my surprise, Miss Bechtel has placed one of my water color paintings on the exhibit in the main hall. I feel spurred on to do better work.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

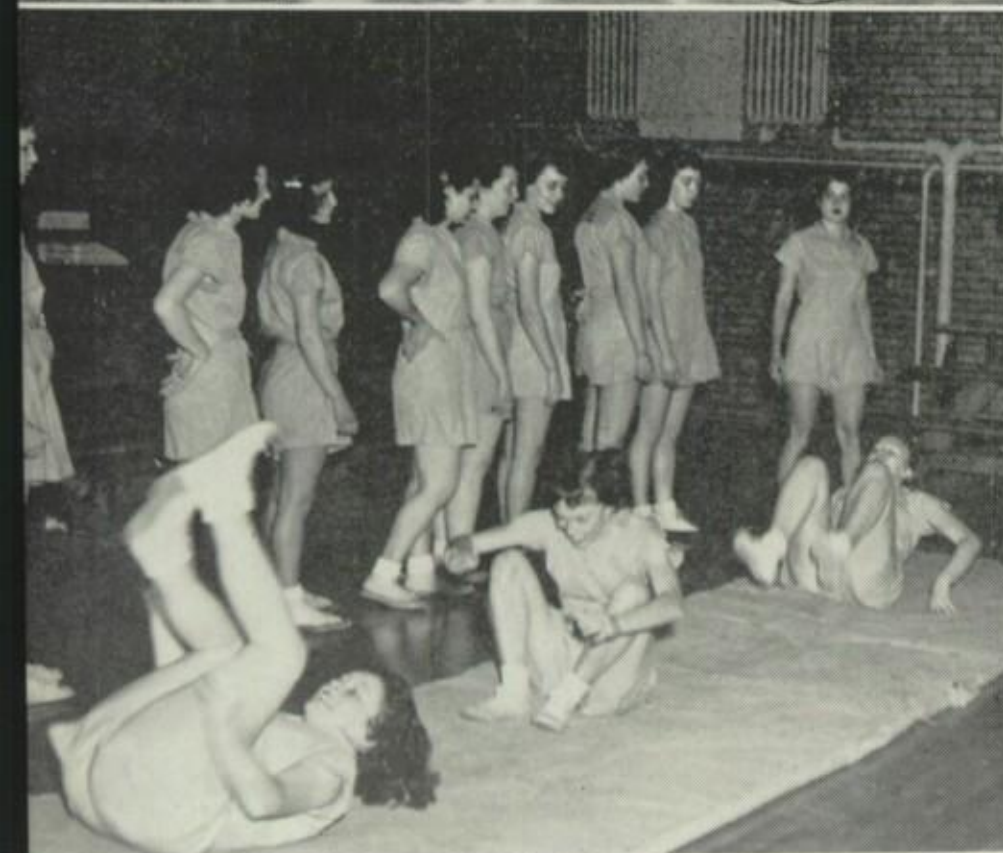

Dear Diary,

I learned how to do the seal clap in gym today. This is just one of the many skill tests set up for the girls' gym classes, each girl being required to complete a certain number of tests in each marking period. Along with our skill tests we are learning some of the fundamentals of baseball—the correct way to catch, to pitch and to throw a ball. We now play longball, or indoor baseball; but when the weather gets warmer, we'll play outside.

Square dancing adds fun and interest to our classes. We are starting with the simple patterns, and later we'll try the more complicated ones.

I noticed that the boys were already outside. Along with the usual calisthenics, they were carrying on many other activities—broad jumping, high jumping and pole vaulting. Later they had a good game of baseball and toward the end of the period they ran around the track.

GUIDANCE HYGIENE

Dear Diary,

Our hygiene class was certainly enlightening today: each girl gave a talk on some disease she is particularly interested in. I wish this class met oftener than once a week, for I need to know more about personal and community health. Jack told me the fellows also are giving reports in their classes, held separately. They are studying mental, emotional and physical hygiene. He can hardly wait until next semester when they will practice first aid.

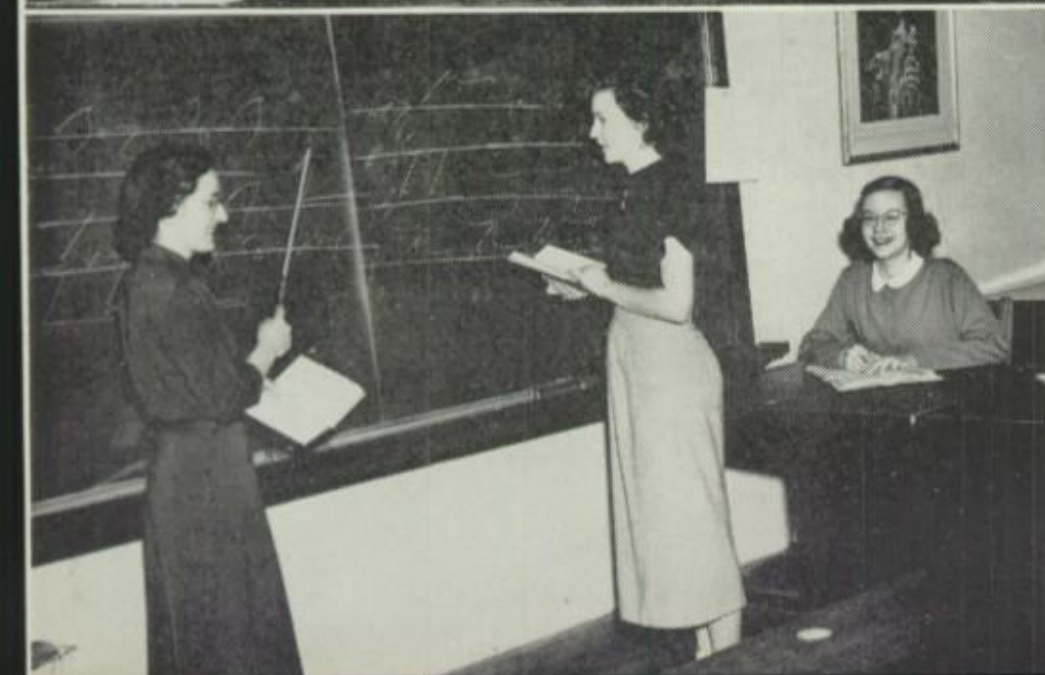

When Barbara hurt her leg at school today she received first aid from Miss Dolan, our nurse. When I called to see how Babe was, she told me that Miss Dolan is giving vision tests now; and when she finishes those, she will test our hearing.

I learned today also that Miss Magson has a complete file of student information in the guidance office. All my scholastic, aptitude and mechanical ability tests, plus those of educational development, personality and interest inventories are filed there. I may see them at any time, and my counselor will find them useful in assisting me in my vocational planning. As a sophomore, my guidance class included orientation to the school, points on getting along with others and educational planning. This year the guidance program was extended to the juniors, and next year it will include the senior. The problems discussed in the latter grades will be those concerning vocations, avocations and adult living.

Gee! I got a temperature.
Now when you get to college.
It must have been a truck.

COMMERCIAL

Dear Diary,

I got my Gregg shorthand pin for 120 words a minute today. To get the pin I had to take dictation for five minutes and then transcribe with a limited number of errors. Now I feel as if all those days of typing and dictation practice accomplished their purpose.

In secretarial practice we typed telegrams and rearranged some sentences so the modifiers would be in the correct place.

It's time for me to do my bookkeeping homework. We are keeping personal accounts of all the money we spend and they require a great deal of time. After I finish my secretarial practice, I'll do my business law.

My business classes keep me busy, but they're preparing me for that job I'll need after graduation.

The Rams ended the 1949 grid season with four wins and six losses. Not favored in any one contest, the Rams had the power to upset some of the better rated teams. Although the Red and Blue scored only 94 points against opponents' 152, the Rams made some of their points in a spectacular way.

A powerful West Waterloo team played host to the Rams in the season's opener. The Hawks literally blasted the Rams off the field as they swept to an easy 39-6 triumph.

A weak pass defense proved to be the downfall of the Rams at Freeport. The Pretzels took to the air with the Rams leading 6-0 in the final period. Three quick touchdowns netted the Illinois gridgers the ball game.

The Rams opened at home against St. Ambrose, considered one of the best teams in the state. Again the Rams faltered within sight of victory, only to lose, 19-13.

With no victories to their credit, the Rams faced their first conference opponent, Roosevelt of Cedar Rapids. A 20-6 victory marked the real start of playing on the part of the Dubuque grid men.

A large number of Senior fans witnessed a near miracle at Iowa City as the Red and Blue swatted the undefeated Little Hawks by a 14-7 score. This was the biggest surprise of the year, and it left the Rams tied for top spot in the conference with Davenport, whom they were to meet next week in Senior's twenty-eighth homecoming.

The Blue Devils steam rolled over the Rams, handicapped by the loss of Garry Mishler, who had fractured his hand.

On a rain swept field the Rams emerged on the winning end of 14-7 score over East Waterloo. A strange feature of the game was that the Trojans scored their lone touchdown after the final gun had sounded.

SOPHOMORE LAMS

A stubborn and inspired Wilson team conquered the Rams 6-0 at Cedar Rapids. A fumble on the Roughriders' three-yard line prevented a possible Senior victory.

Again away from home, the Rams overcome a 6-0 deficit to come out on top over Clinton, 7-6. The Red and Blue trailed throughout the contest, but a 98-yard drive and an extra point beat the down-river rivals.

Moline, rated tops in Illinois, put an end to the Rams' ten-game schedule. It was Dad's Night, and the Rams were determined to win. With Senior leading 14-0, Moline began to roll. Three quick touchdowns broke the Rams' back, 21-14, thus bringing to an end the football season. The Rams ended in a tie for third spot in the Mississippi Valley Conference.

RAMS AND LAMS

The year 1949-1950 proved to be one of transition for the Senior High cagers; therefore, the record did not top those of Iowa preps. As the regular season got under way, the squad's starting assignments were shifted frequently in an effort to arrive at a combination which could be effective in both offense and defense. Under their new coach, Mike McQuirk—formerly of Carroll, Iowa, High School—the Rams developed into a team which could always be depended upon to provide the crowds with plenty of thrills through their fast playing, all-around teamwork, and general good sportsmanship. At all times they reflected only the best traits of character on the playing floor and on the bench.

The season started with underclassmen displaying most of the class in the early practice sessions. Then, as more athletes began to compete for the top berths, the seniors gradually came into their own, and at several times during the season, completely dominated the picture. Good, steady playing, however, was witnessed in the performances of the Juniors, who indicate great promise for the 1950-1951 season.

Opening against Platteville, the Rams experienced a very cold shooting night and dropped the tilt, but countered later by outscoring a surprised quint from Independence. The Roosevelt Roughriders rode over the Rams, but a ragged East High Waterloo outfit fell easy victims to the steadily improving Red and Blue. Luck on the shooting percentage gave Iowa City a victory over the Senior hoopsters; this defeat was followed very closely by two triumphs over Wilson and Franklin of Cedar Rapids. An eleven point deficit kept the Rams from making a clean sweep of a week of tough workouts, for the traditional downriver rivals, the Clinton Riverkings and the Blue Devils of Davenport retained hardwood supremacy over the locals. Taking to the road, the Dubuque cagers lost to both St. Ambrose and Iowa City. A flashy West High Waterloo outfit, which had previously taken the measure of Davenport, had a hard time with the Rams before coming out on top.

In a return match with Clinton, hard luck continued to plague the boys. Victory finally returned to Senior in a conflict with Platteville, but not before Waverly had eaked out a win over the locals. Winding up the season, the Rams sensationally defeated McKinley and St. Ambrose.

SOPHOMORE

The Ram yearlings finished a very satisfactory season with a flourish as they posted a 11 wins 6 losses record in the latest pages of sophomore basketball. In previous years, patrons looked on the Lamb tilts as a means of keeping the customers from getting bored while they waited for the Varsity game to get under way. Not so, however, when this year's crop of cagers took to the hardwood. Showing much class, the Lambs were at all times a hard-fighting, hard-to-lick club, and provided plenty of entertainment. Involved for the most part in scraps with taller boys, this bunch of sophomore hoopsters proved their mettle repeatedly. Scoring punch was evenly distributed, as the box scores of the various games showed, however, much of it was carried by Beyer, the rangy center, Stevens, Reisner, Walters, and others who were close to 24 minute performers. The coaching of LaVerne Benz showed its effect on the boys all through the season, and was evident in the teamwork and all-round ability displayed. The "red and blue" ended as one of the most respected quints in the yearling circuit.

RESERVES

Here we have a group of boys who deserve plenty of credit. They're the ones who sit out the games on the bench, or take turns suiting up for the home encounters. They're the boys who have the fortitude to go out for basketball, escape the initial cut, and stay out, knowing that there is little chance for them to become regular performers. When there's a game scheduled for them, they always play their hearts out.

This year a swell bunch of fellows showed up for the cage sport, and to quote Coach McQuirk, "It's always a hard job to tell a fellow he just isn't good enough at the time." Many were cut, but these few remained and proved themselves big enough to bear a lot of hard work without being given any credit for it.

Hats off to the reserves!

Four lettermen formed the nucleus of Senior High's baseball team this spring. Jim Moriarty, pitcher, and Marvin Collentine, catcher, made up the only experienced battery returning to the Rams' lineup. Harold Blakeman and Jack Vorhees provided plenty of experience at first base. The rest of the squad, however, had to be filled from comparatively inexperienced players.

Bad weather hampered the start with the whole squad being unable to get into action until March 27. Facing Xavier in their first game, the Rams came out on top in a pitcher's duel, 1-0. Jim Moriarty pitched a no-hitter, but his opponent also pitched a no-hitter. Errors accounted for Senior's lone tally. Champion crushed the Rams 18-14 in the second game, and Davenport defeated them 6-1 in the third. From there the Ram schedule pointed to the sectional tourney, May 1-3-5; the district tourney, May 13-15; sub-state, May 20-22; and the state tourney, May 27.

Although baseball is a new sport at Senior, head coach J. J. Nora feels it will grow and expand. New uniforms were purchased this year with the profits from the faculty basketball game.

With only four lettermen returning, the outcome of the 1950 track season looked dim. However, what the team lacked in experience and depth they made up in spirit. With late snows blacking the way, the thinclads were unable to have outdoor practice until just the week before their first big meet, the Mississippi Valley Conference Indoor at Iowa City, March 31. Garry Mishler, Ram pacemaker and defending champion in the hurdles, placed second in both low and high hurdles. Herman Heitzman, half-miler for Senior, placed fourth. Although mile relay team won the second heat of the race, it could muster only fifth in the actual contest. The team came out in fifth place in the final standings.

Some of the locals carrying the load for Senior this year were Bill Deckert, Fred Paar, Bob Heitzman, Gordon Loy, Roger Hoskins, and Ray Reynolds.

A seventeen man tennis squad, dominated by talented and experienced players, reported to tennis coach, John Meyer, this year. Four of last year's leading five men were back again—Dale Siefker, Mel Hammerand, Dale Launspach, and Bob Timmerman. Also reporting were: seniors—Glenn Fuhrman, Tom Louis, Don McCammond, Karl Oleson, and Don Schwenneker; juniors—David Fluetsch, Jim LaBee, William Landschulz, Willis Lang, Bob Moore, and Norman Nuebauer; sophomores—Jim Shaffer and David Stevens.

After downing Clinton and Loras, rocking both Waterloo teams in a triangular meet, and sinking Davenport, the netmen really looked tops, having won their first four meets in a row.

Golf once again was placed on the active list at Senior. Coach Robert Kuefler found it difficult rounding his green linkmen into real tournament golfers.

The only experienced member of the team was Doug Taylor, who had played while a freshman and sophomore. The team consisted mainly of juniors and sophomores.

Probably the biggest events for the linksters were the district meet, the conference meet at Cedar Rapids, and the Franklin Invitational at Cedar Rapids. Other meets including Clinton, Moline, and Loras were carded.

The team practiced at Bunker Hill Golf Club. One characteristic of the group was that no person could say he didn't have a chance, as a person down the ladder could challenge one of the higher up boys for his position.

According to J. J. Nora, boys' athletic director, intramurals help to put boys not out for varsity sports into game conditions.

Girls, under the supervision of Miss Melanie Kretschmer, have through intramurals the opportunity to engage in competitive games.

Two new sports were added this year: swimming and pitching horseshoes. Besides these the boys played touch football, basketball, softball, volleyball, handball, ping-pong, and badminton.

Team names, ranging from "Shuvits" to "Titans," were nearly as enthusiastic and peppy as the squad members. The girls' intramurals featured basketball and volleyball as the main sports.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Dear Diary,

The student council meeting was called to order by the president, Rhoda Hanger. The minutes of the preceding meeting were read by the secretary, Barbara Adams, assisted by the clerk, Carole Kilby.

Monthly committee reports were submitted by the following chairmen: George Huseman, treasurer; Betty Galliard, social committee; Andrea Adams, monitor committee; Tom Powers, grounds committee; Barbara Bacon, hospitality committee; Jean Peters, credentials committee; Charles Busch, cafeteria committee; Carolyn Mishler, correspondence committee; and David Stevens, assembly committee.

Miss Helen J. Kintzinger, our sponsor, suggested that we cooperate with the Polio Foundation's campaign for replenishing funds to aid local and national polio victims. The council voted to do so.

Final plans were made for the Mid-Term Hop, which is to have as its theme winter sports.

Today in judiciary committee we had an assortment of cases, including offenses such as running in the halls, eating in the halls and throwing snowballs.

PROMOTIONS COMMITTEE

Dear Diary,

Yesterday in promotions committee Miss Vera Waite, our sponsor, informed us of the "Variety Show" to be held on November 17, 18 and 19. Various committees were appointed to make plans for the ticket campaign, hall decorations, and publicity outside of school.

Today the committees made their reports. We decided to repeat the original skit, "Guffy's Tavern," at the promotion assembly, bringing the skit up to date. The outside-of-school publicity committee decided to have bumper strips for the buses. One of the girls suggested that for hall decorations we use ballet figures suspended from the lights and on the wall sketches of three dancers poised on the edge of a footlighted stage. The committee, after discussing the suggestions, voted in favor of them.

Dear Diary,

I'm so happy and excited because I've just made the National Honor Society!

Since I am in the upper one-third of my class in scholarship, leadership, and service, I had three opportunities to be elected to this society by a vote of the faculty. I began to be eligible the second semester of my junior year; since I failed to win membership at that time, I was left two opportunities to be elected during my senior year, and now I'm in.

I had another thrill when I found I'd just made the Quill and Scroll Society. Requirements for membership in this are that I must be an upperclassman in the upper third of my class scholastically; and since I'm on the News and Echo staffs, a sample of some outstanding piece of my work must be sent in to this society's secretary by one of my advisors. Having received the approval of the secretary, I will receive a membership card and the right to buy a Quill and Scroll pin, along with which I will receive a subscription to the Quill and Scroll magazine.

Dear Diary,

Today I again took my post as cafeteria supervisor during the first lunch period to keep tab on the hosts and hostesses (usually one per table) and to see that everything in general was running smoothly. One table of unruly juniors has calmed down since both their host and I threatened to report them to the judiciary committee. The student council's general chairman of the cafeteria came in to remind me of the meeting with the faculty committee after school. I turned in to Miss Andrews, faculty advisor, the last of the bi-weekly grades on my hosts and hostesses. Each one's grades will be averaged and the final one recorded in the merit system.

Before Friday these grades go in to Miss White, advisor of the merit system, along with grades from sponsors of other activities. Then the class secretaries will grade the members of each class in scholarship, leadership, and service and record each person's rankings on the back of his yellow report card. Twice a year the secretary and recording secretary from the sophomore, junior and senior classes determine these rankings from records of students' participation in extra curricular activities weighted according to the merit system standards. Accuracy is needed in this task because merit system records are used to select students for National Honor Society and other awards.

Dear Diary,

Tonight at a meeting of the editorial staff we chose the theme for the Echo. Although many suggestions were offered and voted on, our final decision was for a diary. Each student specified what he would like to write about, and the articles were assigned. I'll have to start gathering the material for mine right away so I can hand it in for checking on time.

We are really busy on the layout staff. Most of the pages for the dummy are drawn up and we're hard at work on the title pages, all of which are going to be drawings this year. We're looking forward to pasting up the pictures, which should start coming in soon. There's certainly more work to putting out a yearbook than we realized, but the satisfaction we get from our efforts makes up for any amount of drudgery.

Dear Diary,

At the Echo business staff meeting after school thirty-five of us went over the list of Echo patrons. Soon we shall put our salesmanship to the test, personally selling copies to the business and professional leaders in Dubuque and equalling—I hope—the record of one hundred and fifty-seven copies sold last year. Student sales are being taken care of by installment payments in home rooms. Contracts have been satisfactorily drawn up with the printer, engraver and binder. Distribution of school and patron copies at the end of the year also rests on our shoulders.

NEWS STAFF

Dear Diary,

Today the News went to press. We had to check to see that all stories were in on time. As usual, one of the big stories was late getting in. The "Pants" column was exceptionally good this time, with enough humor to satisfy everyone, even the sports editor. We found an especially well-written feature story by one of the beginners in journalism. One of the big jobs today was to see that every "beat" had been covered and that there were stories on all activities, both curricular and extra-curricular, if possible. We also checked to see if enough creative work, such as interviews and feature stories had been submitted. The Clinton-Dubuque basketball story needed rewriting in part. We had some difficulty in arranging suitable makeup for the front page, but finally came up with a well-designed one. At the last moment a reporter dashed in with some extra "Patches" to satisfy those individuals who will read nothing but humor.

Although we usually end with a headache the day The News goes to press, we want it to be the best possible because, like all school papers, our staff aims to maintain the All-American rating that The News has had since 1928.

Dear Diary,

When graduation is over, I'll still be thinking of my many enthralled moments as a Thespian! Surely it was a boon for me as a sophomore to become a member of the dramatic honor society and then for two years to see it enlarge with excellent school talent. Our program this year was particularly successful—

"Meet Me In St. Louis" showed many of us in costumes of the early 1900's and in roles that were intriguing.

Dear Diary,

Tonight Dad and I went up to school for the dad-daughter bean feed sponsored by the two YaWaCa Clubs. The theme was "Dads," and the cafeteria was decorated accordingly. Food was served cafeteria style, with beans as the chief item on the menu.

Entertainment was provided by the dads themselves. Mr. A. A. Ayala did a wonderful job in leading the group singing between the various acts. Mr. Kenneth Kilby fascinated us with his tricks of magic. A barber shop quartet, called the "Singing Dads," sang a few of the old and the new songs. Mr. F. Rubey acquainted our dads with the purpose and projects of YaWaCa. Pop and I both had a fascinating time.

RED CROSS

Dear Diary,

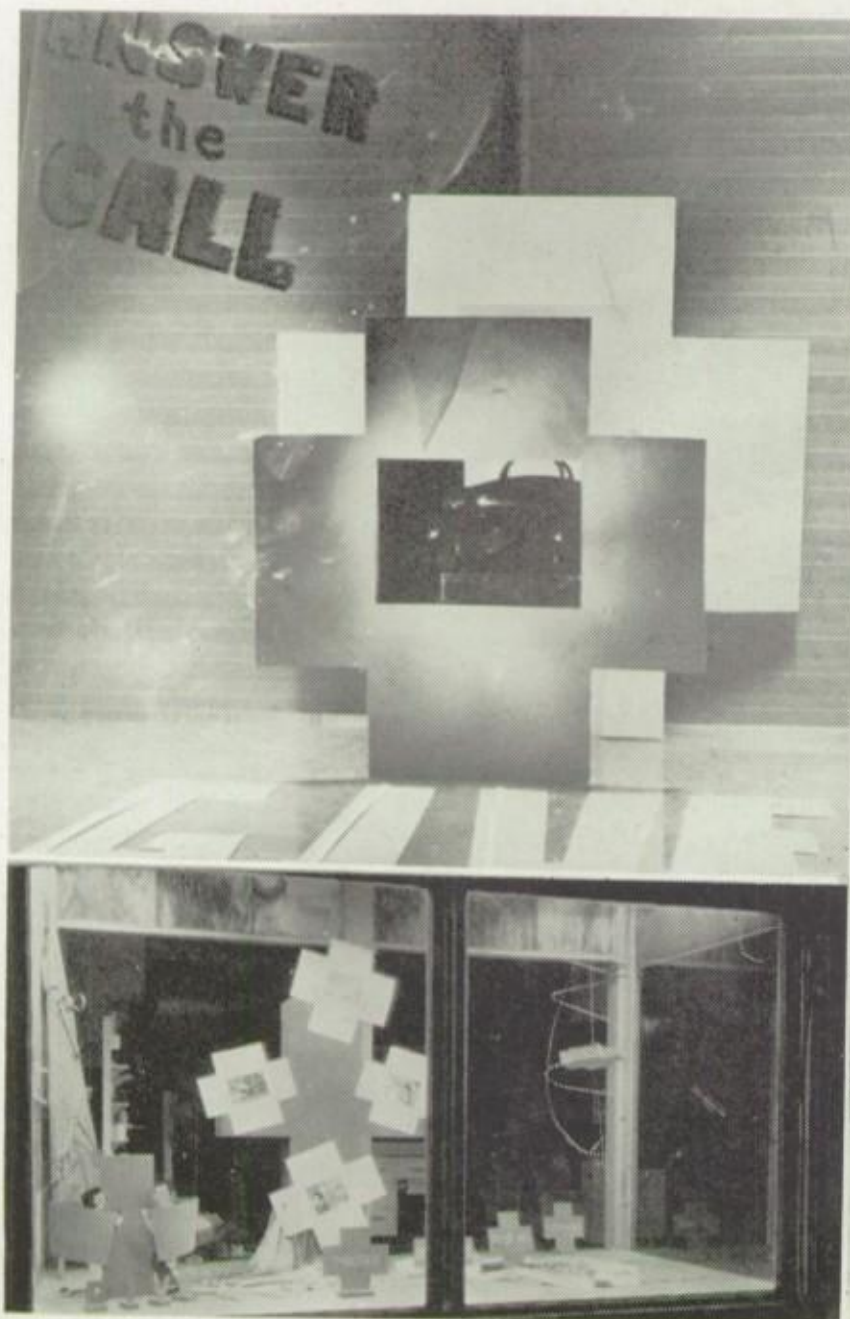

Today I collected money for the March of Dimes program, sponsored by the Red Cross. The response from the student body and teachers was wonderful; every homeroom exceeded the goal of twenty cents per student. A total of $184.60 was collected.

Now that this job is over, I am looking forward to the meetings at which we will make Fourth of July decorations for use in soldiers' hospitals—place mats, nut cups, place cards and attractive favors.

Dear Diary,

More Saturdays should be like this! Today Senior's Girls' Athletic Association—or G.A.A., as we call it—put on a “fun day,” having asked several out-of-town schools to join us in sports. The spring weather being ideal, we played baseball, volleyball, tennis, and other games outside.

After assembling this morning at nine, we split into different groups, with several girls from every school in each group. Every hour we rotated from one sport to another to have an opportunity to meet as many girls as possible.

At lunch time in the cafeteria we enjoyed a delicious meal, everyone eating with his own school group. After lunch each school put on a short skit before we commenced again to play more ball. At five o'clock the party ended with everyone's agreeing that the occasion had been a complete success and that the name “fun day” had been lived up to.

Dear Diary,

After coming from a “D” club meeting, I understand what the early Americans went through to draw up the Constitution of the United States. The club having been inactive for many years, it was necessary that the members draw up a new constitution. What a job! But as it is, we should be finished in a few more meetings. I guess athletes are better at playing games than writing constitutions!

Tonight as we have a basketball game, we’re going to have our concession stand again. We do a huge business at most games. I hope tonight, I will be able to take time to see a little of the game. Here’s hoping we win!

LEAGUE

Dear Diary,

Minicam League meetings mean red letter days. Today after our president called the meeting to order and the secretary read the minutes, members gave reports about the Christmas breakfast held at Eagle Point Park and the hike taken afterwards. We discussed our next project—salon pictures. Those pictures which are judged to be the best by local photographers will be sent to the National Scholastic Contest. The treasurer gave a financial report from the sale of popcorn at the football and basketball games. The club's new equipment was demonstrated before the meeting adjourned.

COMMERCIAL GUILD

Dear Diary,

The Boy's Club from four to six o'clock tonight was the setting for a joyous Christmas party for forty-five youngsters from Dubuque's elementary schools, their little faces radiating happiness and anticipation. We members of the Commercial Guild had to smile unusually hard to keep back tears. Even the rough and tough boys became meek in awe of Santa, who arrived midst a clatter of hoofs and bells. The cheerful atmosphere, the ecstatic looks on the children's faces and their utter entrancement—the memory of these will remain in my heart and, I imagine, in the hearts of others who helped to make this party possible.

WE'VE ALL BEEN GOOD. THANK YOU, SANTA.

Lifting the bride over the threshold.

Dear Diary,

"A Roman wedding!" said my little brother. "Tell me all about it." I showed him the valentine which Cupid gave me at the Latin Club meeting. Each member had to make a valentine and inscribe on it an original verse in Latin. Venus, Goddess of love; Cupid, her son; Psyche; and Hero and Leander were some of the mythological lovers about whom talks were given preceding the ceremony. The home of the bride's parents was the scene where the bride, attired in a long white wedding gown and a flame-colored veil, and the groom, wearing a toga virilis and wreath, were united. By saying "Adsumus," the ten witnesses signified their readiness: the ceremony was under way. The right hands of the bride and groom were joined by the maid of honor. There was no ring ceremony; the bride repeated the ancient marriage formula, thus signifying her consent. Sacrifices and prayers were offered, followed by the torch bearer, the bride, the groom, and the attendants. The flute players led the procession to the groom's home. As the finale the groom happily carried his bride across the threshold of her new home.

On the way home Annette told me about the annual Christmas party which took place at the regular monthly Spanish Club meeting. The highlight of the party was the breaking of the popcorn filled pinata by a blindfolded person equipped with a stick. She enjoys hearing students from local colleges whose homes are in Spanish America occasionally address the club. Mr. Johannsen, who is well informed and interested in our Spanish speaking South American neighbors, comes each year to speak to the club.

Dear Diary,

Tonight after school I attended the monthly meeting of the French Club, which is open to all French students. After our president called the meeting to order and the unfinished business was cared for, we made plans to construct puppets and put on a play in French. To acquaint ourselves more with France's customs and language, we conversed in French. The meeting ended with some group singing of French songs.

NATURE CLUB

Dear Diary,

I went to Nature Club tonight after school; we elected our new staff of officers. They are president, Lois Lampe; vice-president, Anita Ayala; secretary, Mary Lee Blackmon; treasurer, Janet Birch; hike chairman, Jerry English.

Lois outlined our club activities for the year. She told about the project all new members have to submit before they become active members of the club. She said the project must have a nature background. I think I will make a collection of insects. I'm glad that so many outdoor meetings are scheduled. If I get my stockings full of brambles, I can always say I am collecting them. Care of the museum, under the supervision of Mr. Johnson, will be in the hands of the Nature Club. This year several tours are planned to acquaint sophomores with the museum. Films and floor talks will be given on days that are too cold for us to go outside. Also we will usher at the Audubon Society's screen tours.

Christmas Basket for Dubuque's needy.

Dear Diary,

At today's regular meeting of the Hi-Y we heard the reports of our two representatives to the Youth and Government Program at Des Moines. Their reports revealed that the state officials are quite pleased with the work that the Hi-Y organization has accomplished this year. Among the projects of our local club have been the collection of baskets for the needy at Christmas time, decorating sections of our school during the Yuletide season, and strengthening the pleasant relations between the faculty and students throughout the year.

Today's speaker at our Current Problems Club meeting was Mr. Obinaya Alozie, who is from Nigeria, a British dependency in Africa, where his father is the ruler of two million of the Ibo tribesmen. His talk centered around their school life, which is strikingly different from ours.

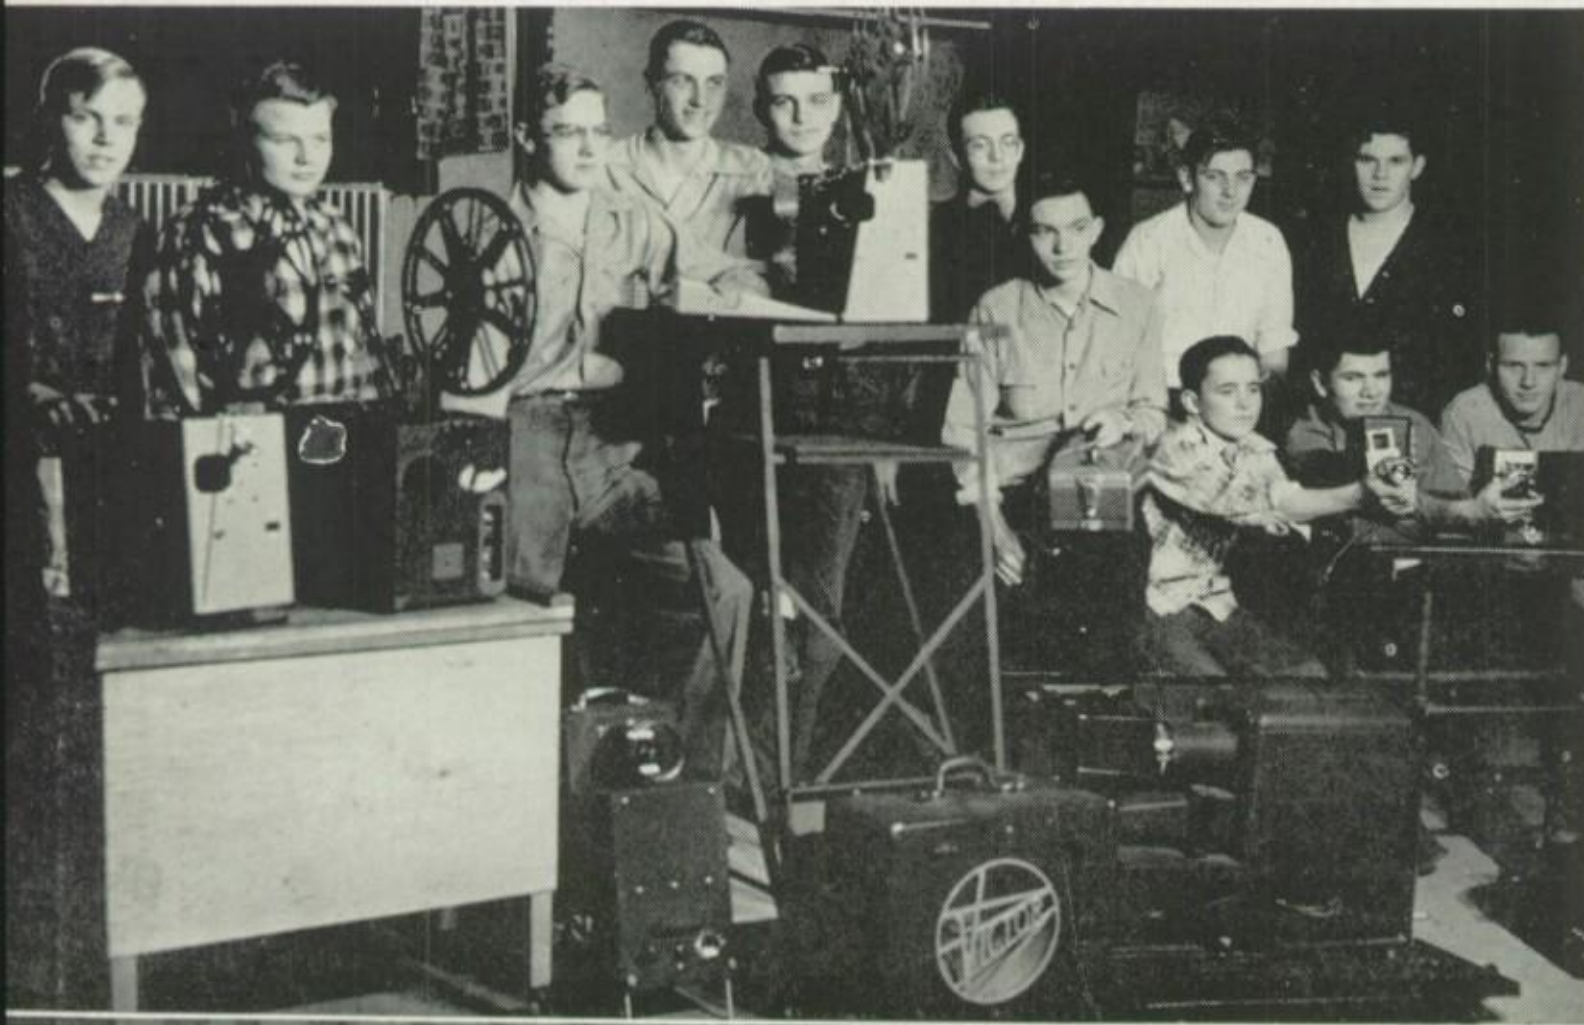

Mr. Alozie was the last speaker in our educational series, which included talks by Sophia Lazaredes from Greece, George Martens from Germany, and Jen-Chi Chang from China. These speakers have helped us better understand other peoples of the world through learning their customs, their standards and their attitudes toward the United States.

MOVIE AND P. A. CREWS - USHERS

Dear Diary,

I really feel proud of myself, for today I put in time on both of the groups to which I belong: movie operators and public address system. I had to show one of the classes a full period movie and prepare the microphone for the "Speech Spotlight" Program to be held tonight.

This work today topped off a busy but successful first semester. Our operators' group has shown quite a few movies to various classes, and our p.a. group has worked for plays and many other stage activities. Our public address group also provided the mike and record player for quite a few dances; there was a member present on each occasion to supervise their use. I have to go up to school early tonight to usher for the program. The ushers are called upon to serve at all concerts and plays at Senior.

Well, I'm looking forward to just as busy a second semester and to just as much fun and sense of accomplishment.
